> Agate sections add a glamorous finish to the mid-century style of this metal 'Vivre' chandelier by Koket. The stones are available in seven colours, including vibrant purple, fuchsia and this chic neutral. They are sliced deliberately thin, allowing light to shine through. Its large size (diameter 70cm) makes it ideal for hanging above a circular dining table.

> An update on the traditional tassel, this tiger's eye tie-back by Spina Design would contrast well with curtains made in natural linen. The brand specialises in using semi-precious materials in modern ways, including dramatic bespoke crystal bead curtains and chandeliers.

> This elegant, custom-made 'Concetto' sideboard by Daniel Germani for DB Woodworks blends American walnut with tiger's eye inlays and brass. It shows how to mix materials successfully in a space: the wood, metal and stone share the same warm palette, ensuring they don't jar, while the rich grain in the walnut references the striation of the tiger's eye.
